COOKBOOK AUTHOR, FOOD EDITOR
PODCASTER, ON-AIR TALENT

Stacie is a pop culture and makeup obsessed food writer and parenting expert who started her podcast, Didn't I Just Feed You, with someone she'd met in person only once. Because whiskey. Don't worry: It's a runaway hit, so it all worked out!

Stacie often hides from her two boys in the bathroom, but that's normal, right? (Even if it's with a spoonful of Nutella?)

Stacie has written two cookbooks and been featured in Parents, Every Day with Rachael Ray, The Washington Post, Redbook, Working Mother, ABC News, PBS Parents, Kitchn.com, and more. She loves being on camera, hosts syndicated media tours, and has guested on The TODAY Show, Hallmark Home & Family, QVC, and too many morning shows to count!

BOOKS + WRITING

Stacie's first cookbook, Make It Easy: 120 Mix-and-Match Recipes to Cook From Scratch With Smart Store-Bought Shortcuts When You Need Them, is a real-life manual of just-healthy-enough family eating for busy parents and their kids – even the picky ones.

Her second cookbook is due in Spring 2020.

PODCAST

Didn't I Just Feed You is a candid weekly conversation about feeding our families – even for parents who hate to cook.

With her co-host and fellow professional cook, Meghan Splawn, Stacie gets real about feeding kids, tweens, and teens. From turning nachos into a legit meal to reducing kitchen waste and debt, they chat with guests from Food Network stars to everyday moms to make cooking easier, more delicious, and fun.

ON-AIR

Stacie has appeared on the Hallmark Channel's Home & Family show several times, as well as on The TODAY show, QVC, and too many local and national morning shows to count! She also hosts syndicated media tours for brand partners.

LET'S WORK TOGETHER!

Looking for a leading expert in the family and food spaces? With over 12 years of experience called on by brands and media companies, Stacie would love to talk about how she can help your brand with content and recipe development, appearances, and public speaking.
